

How are the "poor" going to handle going VOIP if they have to pay for both DSL and local phone service? Futher, what is the point of going VOIP at all?

Personally I could do one or the other, but not both. Please reconsider your decison of removing naked DSL, or at least put safe guards in for the low-income working class.

Edward Stewart